Los Angeles, CA (PRWEB) December 31, 2007 -- As many ponder the New Year, thoughts and wishes of good health and prosperity often come to mind. Whether written in cards or in the kind words exchanged with one another, a true sense of compassion is felt. LifeMel Honey, already introduced in the United States, is now being sold in Harrods and this year some are giving the gift of good health and good tidings with a little taste of honey.

"People are tending to use it more as an alternative therapy", said Andre Dang, Harrods press and product manager. Honey has been known to have positive health benefits and now some select bees are producing a unique honey with unbelievable benefits and relief for Chemotherapy patients.

Since the launch of LifeMel Honey in the United States and now in Harrods, more and more people are hearing and benefiting from this amazing honey used for the treatment and support of patients suffering from the side-effects that result from the treatment of malignant illnesses.

"I became aware of the special honey through the recommendations of friends who are suffering from cancer and to whom this honey spared the extremely severe side-effects, as well as having a very positive effect on me. The white blood cells and hemoglobin had increased and I finally felt good, strong and much more functional", says Neta.

No one knows what the New Year will bring however chemotherapy patients are happy to have a little more relief with the help of some special bees and a new location.
